Allies Renew Aerial Attacks

BOMB BRIDGES, STRAFE TROOPS

85 German Tanks, Armored Cars Bagged by Normandy-Based Wing

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, July 10—Large forces of Allied bombers and fighters streamed across the English channel in improving weather today in support of the British and American troops advancing on the Normandy battlefield.

The Paris radio said Allied planes bombed northeast Paris this morning.

During the night RAF Mosquito and Boston bombers ranged deep into France and attacked 18 trains and railroads leading to the German front, highway convoys and Seine river bridges.

Mosquitoes bombed a synthetic oil plant at Buer, Lancasters with fighter cover attacked an unidentified military objective in northern France. Other RAF planes laid mines in enemy waters and not an aircraft was lost in the night operations.

German reinforcements struggling westward across the Seine near the coast just east of Le Havre on ferries and pontoon bridges were bombed and strafed over a 30-mile stretch between Quillebeuf and Duclair.

Bag 85 German Tanks
The German radio said single Allied raiders were over northwest Germany early this morning.

German positions only 50 yards ahead of Canadian troops were attacked by Typhoons that swooped in no more than 10 feet over the soldiers' heads.

A Normandy-based Spitfire wing got a congratulatory telegram from the British Second Army for yesterday's bag of 85 German tanks, trucks and armored cars destroyed and damaged.

Eleven Allied planes have been reported lost thus far in yesterday's 350 sorties, made despite poor weather, and at least the same number of German planes were shot down. Three of the Allied planes lost were heavy bombers.

The Allied strategic air campaign against the German war effort was carried forward yesterday by about 1,000 U. S. heavy bombers which flew from the west and south escorted by a like number of fighters while many formations of other types continued direct tactical support of the Normandy beachhead.

American 15th Air Force heavy and medium bombers, equipped with the latest equipment which the Germans cannot withstand.

Over on the eastern front the great Russian offensive was surging.

Motorist Fined $10 After Sideswiping Large Truck

Kenneth E. Himer, 22, of Struthers was fined $10 and costs Saturday by Mayor K. T. Gormley of Columbiana following an accident on Route 14, three miles east of Columbiana, with a large truck and trailer driven by Charles Rudi, Jr. of Philadelphia.

Himer was fined on a charge of reckless operation, placed by state patrolmen who investigated the accident. No one was injured but the patrolmen said Himer's car swerved to the left as he was driving west and sideswiped the truck.

Conquest Of Saipan Opens Vast Possibilities Of Sea Air Smashes Toward Japan

(By Associated Press)
U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, July 10.—Vast new possibilities of sea and air smashes toward Japan and the Philippines surged into view today with the conquest of Saipan and the Marianas islands in the Western Pacific.

Onrushing American forces wrested Saipan Saturday from a terrified Japanese garrison trapped on the island's northern tip. It fell 24 hours after Allied forces under Gen. Douglas MacArthur completely took over Noemfor near New Guinea's northwest end.

Associated Press War Correspondent Rembert James, representing the combined Allied press, came through with the first details of the savage bitter-end struggle the trapped Japanese offered on Saipan.

"Organized Japanese resistance ended just before dusk yesterday (Saturday)," he wrote. "Civilians were surrendering by the hundreds. In 25 days of battle American forces had battered the first great

23 DRAFTEES OFF FOR ARMY SERVICE

The July contingent of district selectees—23 in all—entrained at the Pennsylvania depot at 9:59 a. m. today for Cleveland, where they will be inducted into the Army.

Leader of the group this month was Arthur C. Hoover, 1063 Buckeye ave.

Draft board officials said the group leaving today brought the local board up to date on its calls. Another call, probably for early August, is expected soon, they said.

The complete list of draftees who left today follows:

Theodore R. Albright, 364 Sharr st.

Edward Sylvester Cable, 386 S. Madison ave.

Robert Ellsworth Cafaro, 1187 S. Mahoning ave., Alliance.

Harry Lewis Ehrhart, 449 Aetna st.

Paul Francis Englert, 271 W. Eighth st.

Francis Bernard Fagan, 507 Aetna st.

Carmen Joseph Ferry, 285 Front st., Leontonia.

Robert Franklin Gardner, 345 Main st.

Robert Arnold Hahn, Homeworth.

Lawrence Raymond Hippely, R. D. 3, Salem.

Arthur Calvin Hoover, 1063 Buckeye ave.

hole in Japan's inner defense armor and carried the war more than 1,000 miles westward.

Destroy 95 Percent of Japs
"From Saipan American planes can fly across Japan's sea and air routes southward from the empire and even Japanese home islands will be in reach of long-range planes."

James said probably 95 per cent of the Japanese garrison, estimated at more than 20,000 when the invasion began July 14, had been destroyed.

"The finale yesterday was an ugly spectacle of senseless dying," he continued.

Enemy troops, weakened to a point of exhaustion by two days of futile counterattacks, were pushed steadily backward. "The desperation and panic behind the enemy lines helped to crumble Japanese defenses."

"American airmen flying over the trapped foe saw signs of bewilderment and terror among the troops and civilians there. At one place scores of Japanese swam out into the sea as the battle drew nearer. x x x There was no where to swim to and they had to swim back or drown."

The strategic value of Saipan was immense.

"Saipan offers the best possibilities for airfield development of any of the islands captured from the Japanese in the Central Pacific campaign," said Vice Adm. John H. Hoover, commander of the Central Pacific forward area.

Best Airstrip Taken
"Its main airstrip is far the best that we have taken and the island's size offers additional advantages of wide dispersal."

Superfortresses could operate from Saipan with devastating power against Tokyo 1,500 miles north or the Philippines, 1,500 miles west. The island also has great potentialities as a naval supply point and submarine staging base. It is less than 150 miles north of Guam, first U. S. territory taken by Japan after the outbreak of war.

TWO E. LIVERPOOL SOLDIERS KILLED

EAST LIVERPOOL, July 10—Corp. George A. Auerbach, 23, a marine, was killed in action in June, presumably in the battle of Saipan, in the south Pacific, the War department today advised his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Auerbach.

Besides his parents, seven sisters and a brother survive.

Sergt. George Richard Smith, 27, a waist gunner on a flying Fortress, was killed May 30, in an air raid over Germany, the War department advised his wife, Mrs. Miriam Bennett Smith.

Besides his widow, he is survived by his mother, Mrs. Rebecca Smith, and four brothers, all in the armed service.

Prepare to Bury Circus Dead: List Mounts to 158

HARTFORD, Conn., July 10—Hartford today prepared to bury its six unidentified dead as the death list of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus fire of last Thursday mounted to 158.

The unidentified, three children, two women and one man, will be buried in individual graves in Northwood cemetery. Mayor William M. Mortensen has announced.

Hartford was a city of prayers and funerals Sunday.

In every church, amidst poignant, silent grief, clergymen of all faiths read the names of those in their parishes who had died in the greatest circus catastrophe in the country's history and announced the hours of funeral services.

YANKS ADVANCE IN ITALY DRIVE

Drive Foe from Volterra As Germans Mass Guns On Entire Front

ROME, July 10.—Overcoming dogged enemy resistance, American infantrymen who yesterday captured the German stronghold of Volterra have knifed forward another four miles and driven a significant wedge in the German defenses fronting the so-called "Gothic line." Allied headquarters announced today.

The action of the doughboys in driving the Nazis from Volterra was described officially as a setback to the enemy's intention of imposing the maximum delay on the Fifth Army's drive toward the Arno river, on which are situated the cities of Florence and Pisa.

Progress, however, remained slow along the entire Italian front as the Germans continued to mass guns and troops and to fight desperately from every vantage point.

On the west coast, an Allied spokesman said, American troops made an advance of unspecified distance toward Livorno (Leghorn) despite heavy enemy fire of all kinds and widespread demolition.

The troops in that sector last were reported only 10 miles from the big port.

Heavy Fighting Rages
Another American force moved up to attack Pomaja, eight miles inland and 14 miles southeast of Livorno. This village is astride the important north-south highway, Laetico, 21 miles east of Livorno.

Supported by 20 tanks, the Germans launched a strong counter-attack against the French in the vicinity of Ranza, 8½ miles east of Volterra, and heavy fighting raged in that section.

No important gains were reported by Eighth Army troops threatening the vital communications center of Arezzo, where the Germans have been digging in for a prolonged battle. The Nazis are counter-attacking fiercely in that area, but the British announced they had restored all positions overrun in these thrusts.

Farther east in the Apennines, the Eighth Army captured Pietralunga and repulsed two strong night counterattacks. In the Upper Tiber valley, a gain of five miles was recorded as the British mopped up Montepetri and Carpi and pushed on some eight miles north-east of Umbertide.

BARNES DESTROYED IN SATURDAY FIRE

Fire destroyed two barns, a small storehouse and some stock equipment belonging to Joseph A. Bowman on the rear of a property at 352 E. Third st. at about 1:07 p. m. Saturday.

Firemen said the fire, which also damaged the side of an apartment garage nearby, had apparently originated in one of the barns, where two small boys were playing with matches. The frame buildings were consumed almost at once in the flames. Chief Vincent Malloy said, and firemen could do little more than keep the blaze from spreading.

Chief Malloy said considerable damage was also done to the side of the apartment nearby and he said other buildings were blistered by the heat.

Another fire was extinguished at 8:53 p. m. in the Firestone store on E. State st. The small blaze was caused by a short in the electrical system. Little damage resulted.

Sergt. Radsick, Wounded In Normandy, Back Home

Sergt. Radsick was with an armored infantry division and had been stationed in England since December. He was employed in a grocery here before he left for service.

BOND DRIVES PASS QUOTAS

Leontonia Is 20 Per Cent Over E Goal; Waterford Well Over Top

Salem's total sales in the Fifth War Loan drive, which closed officially at midnight Saturday, rose to $2,375,952 as a slight increase in E Bond sales was recorded on the last day of the campaign.

E sales Saturday amounted to $10,275, bringing the city total to $252,771.50 for that issue. Although the E goal was not reached in the regular drive here, the sale of these bonds has been extended until July 31.

Leontonia stepped out in front in E bond sales in the county with a report today by Chairman E. C. Greenamyer that his town had gone 20 per cent over its E quota. Sales reached $43,000 in this division.

Total bond sales in Leontonia were $140,000 today and Greenamyer and his committee are working hard to reach the quota of $155,000.

Chairman William E. Ferguson reported that New Waterford went over the top as the drive closed there Saturday night, exceeding the E as well as the overall quota.

With a total quota of $149,060, sales reached $151,040. The E bond quota was $34,580, with sales of $35,250.

WASHINGTON, July 10—Vice President Wallace returned to the capital this morning by plane, and the White House announced he would report later today to President Roosevelt on his mission to China and Russia.

The War Today...

By DeWitt MacKenzie
AP War Analyst

THIS HAS BEEN a gratifying week-end for Allied arms the world around, with substantial victories recorded in Normandy and Russia, and American completion of the bloody conquest of the strategic island of Saipan in the Central Pacific.

The allies have made important progress in Normandy. They finally have ripped the German battle-line loose from its bitterly defended anchors at both ends. The Canadians and British took the ancient city of Caen on the Normandy flank after 35 days of hell, while the Americans captured La Haye Du Puits on the western wing in the face of stubborn resistance.

The fall of Caen is of particular importance because this inland port and railway center was the key point of the German defense of the peninsula. Had we been able to take this stronghold early in the invasion, it would have made a great difference in our progress in breaking into the French hinterland — progress which the Allied command had hoped would be much further ahead than it is now.

However, Supreme Allied headquarters cautions us not to regard the victory at Caen as a major defeat of the Germans but that it paves the way for the decisive battle which we much win before we can free the peninsula of the enemy and thereby enable our forces to reach the open roads to Paris and Berlin. This great clash may be expected soon.

While the invasion of Normandy has struck some very sticky going thus far, things are rounding up so that the wheels should turn much faster from now on. Once the great port of Cherbourg is repaired and its restoration has been a Titanic engineering job—the Allies will be able to pour

Proposes Health Clinics Provided by Government

WASHINGTON, July 10—Vice Admiral Ross T. McIntire proposed today that the government provide health clinics to help build up a healthy post-war American youth.

McIntire, who is the Navy's surgeon general and President Roosevelt's personal physician, also advocated over-all medical and hospital insurance in a paper submitted to Chairman Pepper (D-Fla.) and a senate subcommittee on health and education.

Wallace arrived here from Seattle, Wash., shortly before 10 a. m.

LET'S WALLACE RECORD DECIDE

Roosevelt To Leave Vice Presidential Choice Up To Convention

The word spread in Democratic circles today that President Roosevelt apparently has decided to let Henry A. Wallace stand or fall on his own record and to leave entirely to the Democratic national convention the choice of a 1944 vice-presidential nominee.

That report, on which most party leaders are proceeding, came as Wallace headed toward Washington to report to Mr. Roosevelt Tuesday and to reappraise the political scene after several weeks in China and Russia. Doubts as to a fourth term nomination for the president no longer are expressed.

Word seeping from inner party councils indicated that if the convention consults the chief executive as to his wishes, he will express a preference for Wallace. He may let the preference be known anyway.

But he is represented as not prepared to dictate a choice to the convention, which starts July 19 in Chicago. Wallace has his supporters, but there is a strong element of opposition to him in party ranks, much of it from the south. Virginia emphasized that Saturday by voting to instruct its 24 delegates to the convention to ballot against Wallace for renomination.

Virginia left her delegates unopposed on the presidential issue but told them to vote as a unit. The action completed the list of 1,177 convention delegates votes, which are lined up this way on the basis of unofficial tabulations:

NAZI DIVISIONS BADLY MAULED BY BIG BLOWS

Americans Are Advancing In All Sectors After Taking La Haye

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, July 10—The German radio said tonight that the Americans had captured Sainteny on the Caranten-Perriers road in the Cherbourg Peninsula.

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, July 10.—The British Second Army struck a hard blow eastward on a three-mile front at the Germans' left flank three miles south of newly-occupied Caen today, capturing Etterville in short order and advancing to within less than a mile of the river Orne.

Field dispatches described the attack as a typical flanking job by Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery. It was made while the bulk of the main German forces were engaged by British sweeping through the ruins of Caen, the suburb of Faubourg De Vaucelles, where the Germans were making a stand.

In the first two and a half hours of the new attack south and east of the Orne river the British overran Key Hill 112, three quarters of a mile north of Esquay on the road to Caen, as well as Etterville, three miles southwest of Caen on the same road.

Follow Up Caen Capture
The new attack, flung with a thunderous artillery barrage at 5 a. m., came just 15 hours after British and Canadian forces had taken Caen, 120 miles from Paris, and opened the way to a favorable flat battleground on the plain of Caen south of the port to Falaise.

On the western end of the line American forces matched the British offensive with a drive that made progress in all sectors following the capture of La Haye Du Puits, bitterly defended German stronghold.

Field dispatches assaying the extent of the British-Canadian victory at Caen said the German 12th S S Panzer division and a field division had been mauled badly in trying to hold the town. The 12th Panzers were reported whittled to 45 per cent of their normal strength, a loss of perhaps 5,500 men.

The town of Caen was battered so badly the British had to bring up bulldozers to push the rubble aside because vehicles could not get within 500 yards of the river.

The Germans have suffered a "ever reverse," the Supreme command asserted in commenting on the capture of Caen, a stubborn bastion on the eastern wing of the bridgehead front, but hastened to add:

Not a Major Defeat
"They have not yet suffered a major defeat in the field."

The forces of Field Marshal Gen. Erwin Rommel were mauling badly in the fierce fighting for Caen, with the major part of two divisions trapped in pockets north of the river Orne by the swift British advance. But the bulk of the German troops engaged in the attack staged an "organized retreat," in the words of the Supreme command, and took a new stand along the south bank of the Orne.

PANIC AT HARTFORD

Panic again has taken its toll of human beings mentally unprepared to resist its overwhelming impulses. The circus fire Thursday afternoon at Hartford, Conn., with its list of dead and injured, will be added to the record of tragedies in which fear impelled human beings to rush to their own destruction.

Disasters as the fire was in itself, it could not have killed upward of 150 persons. They killed themselves, or were killed, by the mad impulse to run away.

Fire and wind, the two obvious dangers of the circus, always strike suddenly. It is some special kind of irony that fire this time should have struck the circus in the nation's insurance capital, center of the vast business which has been developed on the mathematical probability that the accidents most feared will not occur more often and may occur less often than they occurred before. But there is no insurance which can give protection against the deadliest scourge of all—panic.

INDIVIDUAL TEST ON WAR BONDS

The statistical treatment of War Bond drives is more likely to baffle than inspire individual purchasers. When they are told that, statistically, they have done less than they were expected to do in the purchase of E bonds, they must have recourse to their own consciences for guidance.

The individual test is, of course, whether or not the private citizen's purchase of bonds has been the limit of his ability to buy; if it has been, statistics of an over-all failure to meet a quota have slight meaning. In the Fifth drive, as in the preceding four, most citizens have responded to the limit of their ability, as they were able to estimate it. They know that some other citizens have not responded in corresponding degree, but they know, also, there always will be laggards. As long as the purchase of bonds is a matter of individual determination, that will be the case.

Unfortunately, the statistical approach, which can reveal only the composite result of the drives and not the impact on individuals, never can present a rounded picture. Like the statistical approach to the problem of inflation, there is too much dependence on someone's arbitrary estimates of situations which cannot be reduced to exact figures. Perhaps it would be better in the long run if the treasury department were to abandon goals in terms of arithmetic and substitute goals in terms of responsibility. When the individual has bought all he can, then only has he bought enough.

CIRCUMSTANCES ALTER CASES

The Polish problem, aggravated again by the critical military action occurring in Polish territory, will be the critical test of Russian diplomacy. It is apparent that Russian troops intend to occupy all of pre-war Poland, if necessary to exclude the Germans. It is apparent that they will be regarded outside Poland as liberators; what their reception by Poles may be is indeterminate.

The last time the Russians came, during September, 1939, they came as invaders, having reached an agreement with the Germans to partition Poland. The agreement continued in force until abrogated on July 30, 1941, by a peace treaty signed with the Polish government-in-exile in London, after Germany launched its attack on the Soviet Union in the preceding month. Since then, proposals and moves to establish a working relationship between Russia and the Poles and to do this in a way that will have the desirable effect of placating critics in the United States and elsewhere have testified to one of the most difficult situations created by the war.

When it is recalled how circumstances have altered cases since 1939, only the rash will pretend to know what the Poles are giving to think about the latest turn in their destiny—because obviously no outsider is qualified to speak for them.

CHINA GETS UP AT NINE

Apologies are in order again for underestimating China's comeback power. The sudden lifting of the siege of Hengyang, key city in Japan's drive to isolate the South China coast, is in the best tradition of Chinese fighting.

The Chinese have been the most predictable nation in World War II. They always come back. Lacking details of the Hengyang comeback, we may hope that this time the still limited, but ever-growing, power of China's allies had something to do with the comeback. United States planes clearly had something to do with it. Allied military power in Burma and the promise of increasing help from that direction helped. The naval drive in the Central Pacific which made the Japanese try to seize Hengyang also helped.

China's war is bitter—bitter not only for the Chinese but for their allies whose hands are still tied by inability to overcome Japan's early advantages. The ultimate role of Chinese fighting men waits on events still in the making, but one thing is certain. They have fought so long and so well with so little that when real aid comes they cannot help but fight better. Again and again, it has appeared that they were about to get knocked out, but that is an illusion peculiar to occidentals, apparently. The Chinese do not get knocked out. They rise on the count of nine.

SASEBO, WHERE IT HURTS

The twin tagets of Yawata and Sasebo hit by the second B-29 raid on Japan proper are logical objectives for the strategic bombing now beginning to nibble at the Japanese war potential. Yawata, now struck twice, makes steel. Sasebo is one of Japan's three most important naval bases, where steel and other military essentials are combined to create Japan's naval power.

It will be noted that Kure and Yokosuka, the other two most important bases, lie further east on the main Japanese island of Honshu. Whether or not they can be reached by the B-29's is conjectural—a matter to be settled by the extreme range of the new bombers. Kure, however, is not much further, though Yokosuka lies in the No. 1 target area of Japan—the Tokyo region.

The probable effect of the bombs dropped on the installations at Sasebo can be estimated in this country by imagining what our state of mind would be if Japanese super-bombers had carried out a raid on the installations at San Diego, Norfolk, Bremerton, or the Brooklyn navy yard.

THE STARS SAY:

For Tuesday, July 11

THIS DAY promises outstanding success for those who use quick, direct and sagacious activity, in which initiative, ingenuity and originality are emphasized. This may involve a sudden change of plans and objectives, in which publicity, advertising or other clever moves must be brought to bear upon tenacious obstacles, or depressive and static circumstances. Dynamic actions, with a moderate degree of compromise or shrewd yielding may help where intrigues threaten. The mind should be found equal to cope with major obstructions.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of thrilling and sudden adventures in which a degree of dispatch, shrewdness and creative ability may turn the tide of menacing events. The intuitions and intellect may be found keyed to highly productive techniques for reversing difficulties and negotiating dangers by quick grasp of major situations, which may call for radical change. The use of clever strategies or friendly compromise may be effective where lack of tact might confuse the issues. With shrewd and clever work exceptional opportunities for originality and acumen may be anticipated.

A child born on this day may have much stability and discernment of character, with keen and brilliant intellectual and creative abilities.

Management does not seem to realize that it too has a right to make demands, not only the right but the obligation. Management must demand and get cooperation for quality and lowered costs so that there will be more and better goods for more people.—Thomas Roy Jones, president American Type Founders

We have long since escaped from the idea that some countries were merely beds of raw materials or agricultural production, to be exploited for the benefit of foreign manufacturers.—Assistant Secretary of State Adolf A. Berle Jr.

Together with our Allies we will go on to the end and the end will be the more terrible for our foes the longer the struggle continues and the longer this war is protracted.—Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

I am everlastingly convinced that the destinies of the hundreds of millions of men and women who happen to be nationals of the smaller countries cannot be determined for them by the major powers.—Sumner Welles.

When the war is over, no country will be able to improve the well-being of its people without our help.—Bernard-Baruch.

The Strains of War Discussed

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

It should be no surprise to anyone who has thought about it at all that the stresses of war have created many mental invalids. Men's minds, like their bodies, are built on different levels of resistance to strain.

One man will go along quite efficiently on a job that requires little responsibility or initiative and as long as economic conditions are prosperous he will never show that he has inside him the seeds of mental deterioration, alcoholism or complete madness. Most men lead lives of quiet desperation, but so long as the desperation is quiet we never notice them. When something makes it active society has to take notice.

War is certainly the supreme example of such an activator. We are seeing in medical practice plenty of examples of the result and it is not pessimism, but simply a realistic conclusion that one of the great post-war problems will be the mental incapacity of a large group of our citizens, the numerical amount of which would be difficult to assess.

Report From England
From England we have a report on this by Dr. James W. Mackintosh, published by the Commonwealth Fund (The War and Mental Health in England). The British had much more stress than we—air raids, life in shelters, evacuation of children and separation from parents. The report makes no estimate of the exact number of mental wrecks there are in England, but one gathers this is in the millions.

In the United States the causative factors have been for the young induction into the army and the prospect of battle experience, and for the older group, change from peacetime work to war work, overwork, grief from losses of loved ones, separations, and the petty annoyances and restrictions of rationing and priorities. Only the very weakest went down under the last. What the psychiatrists see can be classified under three headings.

1. The anxiety state. The nervous breakdown. Consisting of excitement, confusion, unaccountable actions, tremblings, changes in pulse and breathing. These are not necessarily serious problems and when the crises are over will probably in most instances automatically adjust themselves.

2. Conversional breakdown. These are gross mood disorders, or the simulation or fear of some organic disease. Usually they are based upon an essential psychopathic personality and the war developed this as a photographic plate is made clear by the developer. They may respond to treatment or may become forever useless.

3. The accentuation of previously seen and recognized neuroses. The hysteric, or the person with temper tantrums has more frequent attacks for less real reasons. The functional dyspeptic takes more pills.

War Cures
One hopeful thing about this last group is that the stresses and responsibilities of the war cures instead of accentuates a lot of them. In such a case the functional dyspeptic finds some pride in the fact that he can eat anything, the headache quitters quit their beefing and go to work, and the insomniac sleeps like a top.

One lesson from the British experience is that in treatment we shall probably have to take these people in classes and treat them by group psychology. The cases are too numerous to allow of individualization.

Another lesson each of us can take to heart. It is the tough-minded notions who are going to endure and you can take it if you make up your mind to it. Instead of giving way and saying—"I can't stand any more of this. I am going to have a good old fashioned cry," you will find it is just as easy to say—"For the sake of my neighbors and my friends and my country I can stand up in the dark and act as if it were light."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

L. M.:—How does one test the urine for sugar? My mother has diabetes and it is most inconvenient to go to a doctor from where I live.

Answer: All diabetics, or a near relative, should learn how to test the urine for sugar at home. It is very simple. Any drugist will supply you with Benedict's solution, a test tube, an alcohol lamp and a medicine dropper. Put a teaspoonful of Benedict's solution in the test tube, hold it over the flame of the lamp until it comes to a boil, then drop a few drops of urine into it and boil again. If sugar is present it will cause a green, yellow or red cloudy deposit. If none is present the solution will remain blue.

- Fast acceleration cuts gas mileage as much as 20-30 per cent. Accelerate gradually in first and second speeds.
- Quick starting and stopping wastes gas! Maintain even speed; anticipate traffic stops.
- Drive at moderate speeds; 20-30 M.P.H. is the most economical. On the highway, don't exceed 35 M.P.H.
- Under-inflated tires increase rolling resistance and tire wear! Check tire inflation weekly.
- Dragging brakes waste gas! Keep brakes properly adjusted. For safety, have them relined if necessary.
- Have your car lubricated regularly—make sure your oil filter is working efficiently. Replace if needed.
- Evaporation occurs faster in hot weather. Don't neglect the battery. Add water frequently as needed.
- A dirty or neglected cleaner impairs engine performance. Have the air-cleaner inspected and cleaned if necessary.

"CALAMITY TOWN" by ELLERY QUEEN

©1943 by LITTLE, BROWN &amp; CO., DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

Mr. Queen found it harder and harder to work on his novel. For one thing there was the fine Indian Summer weather. The countryside was splashy with reds and oranges and yellow greens; the days were frost-touched now as well as the nights, hinting at early snows; the nights came on swiftly, with a crackle....

Wiley Gallimard came into town in five truckloads of turkeys and got rid of them in no time.

"Yes, sir," said Mr. Queen to himself. "Thanksgiving's in the air—everywhere except at 460 Hill Drive."

Then there was Pat, whose recent habit of peering over her own shoulder had become chronic. She eluded Ellery so openly that Her-rodine Wright began to make secret plans in her head and even John, who never noticed anything but flaws in mortgages and rare postage stamps, looked thoughtful.... It made work difficult.

But most of all it was watching Jim and Nora (without seeming to) occupied Ellery's time. Things were growing worse in the Haight household.

For Jim and Nora no longer "got along." There were quarrels so bitter that their impassioned voices rang through the November air all day across the driveway to the Wright house through closed windows. Sometimes it was about Rosemary; sometimes it was about Jim's drinking; sometimes it was about drinking. Jim and Nora continued to drink up a brave show before Nora's family, but everyone knew what was going on.

"Jim's gambling," reported Pat one evening.

"Is he?" frowned Mr. Queen. "Nora was talking to him about this morning." Pat was so distressed she could not sit still. "And he admitted it—shouted it at her. And in the next breath asked her for money. Nora pleaded with him to tell her what was wrong, but the more she pleads, the angrier Jim gets. Ellery, I think he's touched. I really do!"

"That's not the answer," said the author-detective stubbornly. "There's a pattern here. His conduct doesn't fit. Patty, if only he'd talk. But he won't. Ed Hotchkiss brought him home in the cab last night. I was waiting on the porch—Nora'd gone to bed. Jim was pretty well illuminated. But when I began to pump him—Ellery shrugged.

"He swung at me."

Pat jerked. "What?"

"Oh, that was nothing but this. He's pawning jewelry."

"Pawning jewelry! Whose?"

"I followed him today when he went to the bank at noon. He ducked into Simpson's on the Square, and panned what looked to me like a cameo brooch set with rubies."

"That's Nora's! Aunt Tabitha gave it to her as a high school graduation present!"

"Ellery took her hands. 'Jim has no money of his own, has he?'"

"None except what he earns."

Pat's lips tightened. "My father spoke to him the other day. About his work. Jim's neglecting it. You know Pop. Gentle as a lamb. You must have embarrassed him dreadfully. But Jim snapped at him, and poor Pop just blinked and walked away. And have you noticed how my mother's been looking?"

"Dazed."

"Much won't admit anything's wrong—even to me. And the town—Emmy DuPre's busier than Goebbels! They're all whispering.... I hate them! I hate Jim!"

Ellery put his arms around her.

Nora planned Thanksgiving with a sort of desperation—a woman trying to hold on to her world as it crumbled and heaved about her.

There were two of Wiley Gallimard's fanciest toms, and chestnuts to be grated, and chanterelles from Bald Mountain to be mashed, and turnips and pumpkins and zucchini and... all requiring fuss and work, with and without Alberta Manaskas's help.... all requiring concentration. And while her house filled with savory odors, Nora would brook no assistance from anyone but Alberta.

Hermy dabbed at her eyes. "It's the first Thanksgiving since we were married, John. That I haven't made the family dinner."

"Maybe this time," chuckled John. "I won't have indigestion."

Nora shoed them all into the living room—things weren't quite ready. Jim, a little drawn, but sober, wanted to stay and help. Nora smiled pallidly at her husband and sent him after the others.

Mr. Queen strolled out to the Haight porch, so he was the first to see Lola Wright as she came up the walk. She was wearing the same pair of slacks, the same tight-fitting sweater, the same ribbon in her hair.

"Don't look at me that way, Ranger! I'm invited. Family reunion, an' stuff. Kiss and make up. I'm broadminded." How come, you no-visit little Lola?"

"Too busy on that novel."

"Yeah!" laughed Lola. "No writer works more than a few hours a day. If that. It's my Snuffy. You're making love to Pat. 'Sall right. You could do worse."

"I could do worse, but I'm not doing anything."

"An' Robie, too! Well, brother, excuse me. I've got to go job my family's sensibilities." And Lola walked into her sister's house.

Mr. Queen waited on the porch a decent interval, then followed. He came upon a scene of purest gaiety. It took keen eyes to detect the emotional confusion behind Hermy's sweet smile, and the quivering of John F.'s hand as he accepted a cocktail from Jim. Pat forced one on Ellery; so he proposed a toast to "a wonderful family," which they drank.

Then Nora, flushed from the kitchen, hustled them into the dining room; and they dutifully exclaimed over the beautiful and bountiful table.

It happened just as Jim was dishing out the second helpings of turkey. Nora was passing her mother's plate when she gasped, and the full platter fell into her lap. The plate—a precious Spode—crashed on the floor.

Jim gripped the arms of his chair. Nora was on her feet, palms pressed against the cloth, her mouth writhing in a horrid spasm.

Ellery reached Nora in one leap. She pushed at him feebly, licking her lips, white as the new cloth. Then with a cry she ran, snatching herself from Ellery's grip with surprising strength. They heard her stumble upstairs, the click of a door.

"Call Doc Willoughby, somebody!"

Ellery and Jim reached the upper floor together, Jim looking around like a wild man, as Ellery was pounding on the bathroom door.

"Nora!" Jim shouted. "Open the door! What's the matter with you?"

"Nora!" Jim shouted. "Open the door! What's the matter with you?"

Then Pat got there, and the others.

"Dr. Willoughby will be right over," said Lola.

"Break the door down!" commanded Pat. "Ellery, break it down!"

But at the first impact, Nora screamed.

"If anyone comes in here I'll—I'll—Don't come in!"

At the third assault, Ellery catapulted into the bathroom. Nora was leaning over the basin, trembling, greenish, swallowing huge spoonfuls of milk of magnesia. She turned a queerly triumphant look on him as she slumped, fainting, into his arms.

But later, when she came to in her bed, there was a scene. "I feel like an animal in a zoo! Please, Mother—get everybody out of here!"

They all left except Mrs. Wright and Jim. Ellery heard Nora from the upper-hall landing. Her tone was hysterical; the words piled on one another.

"No, no, no! I won't have him! I don't want to see him!"

"But dearest," wailed Hermy. "Dr. Willoughby—surely the doctor who brought you into the world—"

"If that old goat comes near me," screamed Nora, "I'll do something desperate! I'll jump out the window!"

"Nora," groaned Jim.

"Get out of here! Mother, you too!"

Pat and Lola went to the bedroom door and called their mother urgently. "Mother, she's so upset. Let her alone—she'll calm down." Hermy crept out, followed by Jim who was red about the eyes and seemed bewildered.

They heard Nora gagging inside and crying.

When Dr. Willoughby arrived, John F. said it was a mistake, and sent him away.

Ellery softly closed his door. But he knew before he turned on the light that someone was in the room. Pat lay on his bed in a cramped curl. There was a damp spot on the pillow, near her face.

"I've been waiting up for you." Pat blinked in the light. "What time is it?"

"Past midnight." The author-detective switched the light off and sat down beside her. "How is Nora?"

"She says she's fine. I guess she'll be all right." Pat was silent for a moment. "Where did you disappear to?"

"Ed Hotchkiss drove me over to Connhaven."

"Connhaven?" Pat sat up abruptly. "Ellery, what did you do?"

"I took the contents of Nora's plate over to a research laboratory. Connhaven has a good one."

"Did you—did they—?"

"They found nothing."

"Then maybe—"

Ellery got off the bed and began to walk up and down in the dark room. "Maybe the cocktails. The soup. The hors d'oeuvres. Wherever she got it, though, it was in her food or drink. Arsenic. All symptoms. Lucky she remembered to swallow milk of magnesia—it's an emergency antidote for arsenic poisoning."

"And today is.... Thanksgiving Day," said Pat stiffly. "Jim's letter to Rosemary—dated November twenty-eighth.... today. Remember, Ellery? 'My wife is sick.' My wife is sick, Ellery!"

"Whoa, Patty. You've been doing fine.... But it could be a coincidence."

"You think so?"

"It may have been a sudden attack of indigestion. Nora's in a dither. She's read the letters, she's seen that passage about arsenic in the toxicology book—it may all be psychological."

"Yes...."

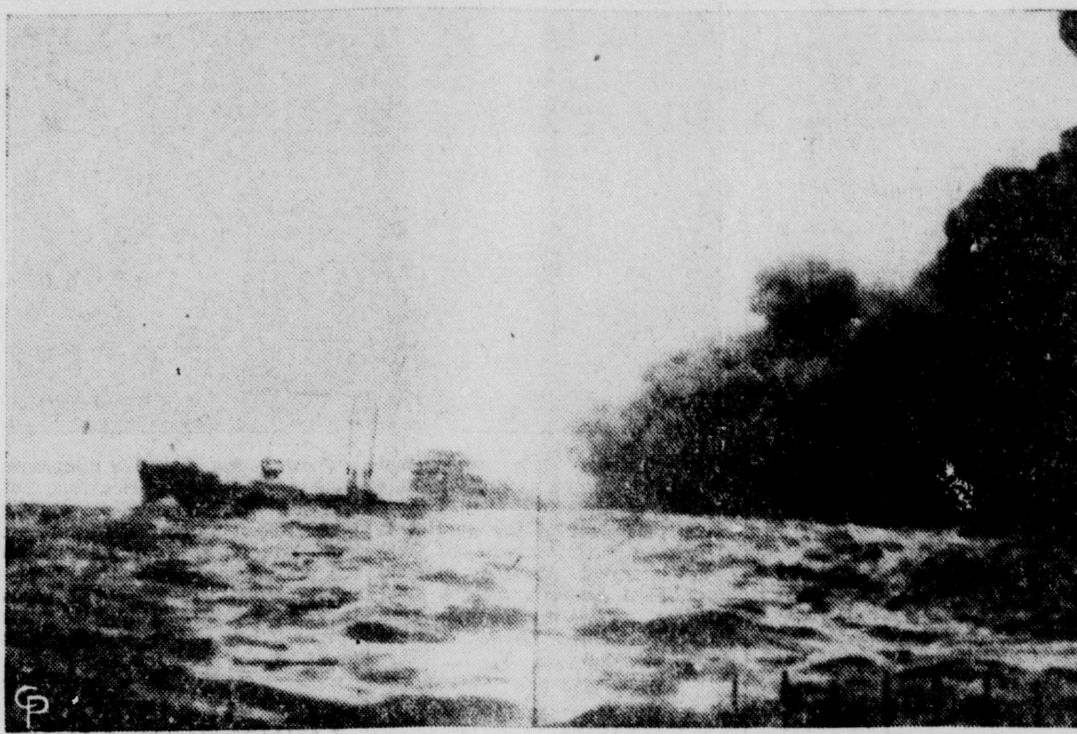

"Our imaginations may be running away with us. At any rate, there's time. And, Pat, I promise you: Nora won't die."

"Oh, Ellery." She came to him in the darkness and buried her face in his coat. "I'm so glad you're here...."

"Get out of my bedroom," said Mr. Queen tenderly, "before your pa comes with a shotgun."

Many Sewage Plants Seen If Canal Is Constructed

PITTSBURGH, July 10. — Ohio communities along the route of the proposed Beaver-Mahoning canal would have to install sewage treatment plants aggregating $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 in construction costs, a survey by the Chester engineers of Pittsburgh for the Upper Ohio Valley association showed today.

The survey said the communities discharging sewage into the canal would be obliged to build the plants as a health measure lest the waterway become an "open sewer" from Struthers, O., to Rochester, Pa.

Estimated cost of constructing the sewage plants should be added to the canal project's cost, the survey stated.

Household Hints

Substitute ready-to-serve cereal breakfast foods in the same amount as bread when you're short on crumbs for Betty puddings.

If you have yarn left over from knitting, see that it is carefully stored with moth preventives before putting away for the summer.

Glass medicine bottles with screw tops make handy containers for buttons of various sizes, pins and needles. They save much "hunting" in the sewing basket.

Kitchen scissors are useful for removing cores and seeds from halved oranges and grapefruit.

After using a steam iron, remove water and store with the cap off to dry out the inside of the iron.

To protect the metal in kitchen cutlery, rinse off in cold and then warm water after cutting citrus fruits.

Save small ends of candles to place on logs when making a fire as they will start a blaze in a short time.

Sausages and sweet potatoes make a tasty dish when baked in layers in a shallow pan with the addition of 1/2 inch of water.

To mend small tears or rips in rubbers or rubber galoshes apply small patches of electrician's tape or rubber cement.

ATTENTION ALL HOME CANNERS

If we all pitch in, 1944 will see the greatest food production in our history.

But that will require your help.

It's up to you to: 1. grow every ounce of food you possibly can; 2. use all the food you grow; 3. can your food by the proper and safe methods.

Every ounce of home-canned food is urgently needed. Your Government begs you not only to match what you did last year but, if possible, to better your 1943 record.

Put up fruits and tomatoes by the boiling-water bath method—a safe and satisfactory method for these foods.

But before you begin your 1944 canning of all other vegetables, Good Housekeeping wants to tell you to avoid a danger that may occur in home-canned food—a danger recognized by many authorities, including the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

That danger is botulinus food poisoning!

Botulinus poisoning comes from bacteria that live in the soil and cling to vegetables. It is rare—but it isn't confined to just a few parts of the country, as some people think.

Botulinus germs may be on the food you can. They must be destroyed. Whenever these bacteria are present in the food and are not destroyed during the canning process, they gradually produce a toxin which is poisonous.

It takes hotter-than-boiling heat to kill botulinus germs. Neither hot-water bath nor open-kettle canning provides enough heat to destroy them. That is why we advise: the only safe way to can low-acid vegetables—which means all vegetables except tomatoes—is by the correct use of a pressure cooker!

If you don't already own a pressure cooker, you'll be glad to know that the Government is allowing the manufacture of 400,000 new cookers for sale this summer, without priorities.

If you can't buy a pressure cooker, borrow your neighbor's... or perhaps you'll find one available through a community canning group. If not, form your own community group, and buy one. To be safe, don't can low-acid vegetables any other way.

We take this opportunity to issue two further warnings: 1. Oven canning is dangerous. It has caused many serious accidents to persons and to property. Shun it! 2. All home-canned foods should be examined carefully when opened. If there is evidence of spoilage, the food should not be used. NEVER TASTE to discover spoilage.*

By all means, put up every ounce of surplus food you possibly can. Our armed forces and the hungry nations of the earth need the benefits of our abundance.

Advices Gardeners How To Plant Crops During Drought

COLUMBUS, July 10.—An expert advised gardeners today how to plant late summer crops during the drought that is gripping the mid-west and slashing vegetable production.

Showers were reported in some sections of Ohio yesterday, but they provided only slight relief and the weather bureau could promise no heavy rainfall in the immediate future.

Planting vegetables in weather as hot as Ohio has had the past three weeks is pretty much of a gamble, said Victor H. Ries, director of the Ohio Victory Garden project.

"It poses a difficult problem," he commented. "However, if late summer crops are to be grown, they must be planted now."

Ries suggested that ground be thoroughly hoed or spaded where seeds are to be planted and that a pound of victory garden fertilizer be incorporated in each 100 feet of row and thoroughly mixed with the soil.

After the row has been prepared and the trench in which the seeds are to be planted has been made, the soil should be thoroughly watered, he asserted.

"Water the row where you are to sow," Ries said, "even if you have to carry the water in pails."

After the seed sown is in the moist soil and covered with a quarter-inch of dirt, shade the row with weeds, old pea vines, heavy building paper or boards, he suggested. Watering before sowing, he said, is better than watering after planting, since it does not have a tendency to cake the ground, or to pack the soil over the seed.

If you have planted, and get an exceedingly hot spell immediately after planting, the wise thing to do is to re-plant about a week later, he advised, since the intense heat sometimes makes a "spotty germination."

Some vegetables that can be sown now include beets, carrots, bush beans, kale, rutabagas, and in a couple of weeks, Chinese cabbage.

Radishes, spinach, endive, leaf and head lettuce, mustard greens and turnips should be planted in late July, he said.

H. D. Brown, professor of vegetables gardening at Ohio State, said the drought was growing more alarming daily. The dry weather has cut vegetable production 10 to 50 per cent, he asserted, with southern Ohio, Indiana and Illinois being hardest hit.

Steamboating Days

COLUMBUS, Miss.—Steamboating on the Mississippi river at the close of the Civil war is recalled in two bills of lading discovered by Mrs. Frank Drake here among papers which had belonged to her grandfather. One was for shipment of 17 bags of cotton from Jones' Landing, Dec. 21, 1865, consigned to Lacey, Terry & Co., at Vicksburg, for shipment to New Orleans. They were carried by the steamer Eddie, Capt. John King, master, and E. P. McElroy, clerk. The freight charges were $85. The other bill of lading was for 23 bales taken aboard at a Mississippi plantation and taken to Vicksburg by the steamer Bierce, Oct. 14, 1865.

BAGS 28TH TO BE NEW AIR ACE

WITH 28 PLANES TO HIS CREDIT, Lieut. Col. Francis Gabreski, 25-year-old Oil City, Pa., Thunderbolt pilot, becomes the top-scoring Ace in the entire U. S. Air Force. Gabreski, who now plans to go home to marry Kay Cochran of Grand Rapids, Mich., thus surpasses by one the record of Maj. Robert S. Johnson of Lawton, Okla., and Maj. Richard I. Bong of Poplar, Wis. Gabreski, shown right in this photo with Maj. Sylvester V. Burke, caged his 28th Nazi plane over France. He quit a pre-medical course at Notre Dame in 1940 to join the Air Force. (International-1)

Hine Suggests Periodic Checkups On Your Auto

The OPA announces that the stock of new automobiles in the United States now has dwindled to 30,000. Before the war, this number would have been equivalent to about three days' sales.

This is another plain indication to the nation's motorists that the better part of wisdom is to conserve one's car to the limit.

Motorists should do all they can to protect themselves and with very little effort on their part they can add many miles or months to the useful life of their present car. Regular attention to lubrication, batteries and tire inflation are the most vital, and if regular inspections are made, by experienced mechanics, such as those employed at the Hine's Motor Co., on W. State st., and the minor repairs made before they become serious, the cost of maintenance is very low.

Old Reliable Dairy's Buttermilk Rated High

As a health drink buttermilk has long been recommended by physicians and anyone will agree that it is refreshing and satisfying as an in-between lunch.

Buttermilk has several real virtues. It contains most of the minerals found in the whole milk. In fact, it is all that milk contains less the butterfat, the calcium, natural sugars, hydrocarbons and minerals are all left after the cream is removed.

The Old Reliable dairy on W. Pershing st. has built a large business on their buttermilk because they have made a study of just how to process the skimmed milk to give it the most delicate flavor and then fortify it with sufficient cream. To be sure you are getting a product that is second to none arrange with the Old Reliable dairy to deliver buttermilk along with your regular milk supply.

Home Insulation Cuts Fuel Bills Considerably

Building and heating contractors and engineers have proven thousands of times that from 30 to 50 per cent can be saved in fuel heating bills by properly insulating a home. The percentage varies because of the difference in building construction and the house exposure to winds.

Figuring conservatively, one third saved in fuel bills will soon pay for the cost of completely insulating with John's Manville "Blown" Rock Wool.

R. B. Finley, manager of the Finley Music Co., on S. Broadway, is the local representative of this internationally recognized and fully approved insulation material that can be literally blown into every open space between the siding or roof and the inside walls, forming a complete blanket around the entire home, shutting in heat, in winter, and sealing out the heat, in summer.

Baseball Classic Looms As Sellout As 40,000 Are Expected In Forbes Field

By JACK HAND
PITTSBURGH, July 10.—Bucky Walters of Cincinnati looms as the probable National league starting pitcher in the 12th annual All-Star field with Mase Joe McCarthy of the American leaguers expected to choose between Hank Borowy of the New York Yankees and Tex Huggins of the Boston Red Sox.

Pending definite announcement from Skipper Billy Southworth of the Nationals and McCarthy, baseball men figured today the two pilots would lead with the ace righthanders. Walters has a 14-3 win record for the Reds, Borowy has won 11 and dropped 4 and Huggins boasts a fancy 13-3 mark.

With Lefty Max Lanier of the Cards out of action for 10 days due to an arm injury, Southworth is expected to follow Walters with Rip Sewell of the host Pittsburgh club and Nate Andrews of the Braves in an attempt to smash the junior circuit's six-year win streak.

Plenty of Pitchers
Bob Muncie of the Browns and Hal Newhouse of the Tigers are available for late duty with the McCarthy clan and Bobo Newsom of the A's may get a chance to strut his stuff before a sell-out crowd that will approach 40,000 and dump $100,000 into the bat and ball fund for servicemen.

Three American league hurlers, Paul (Dizzy) Trout of the Tigers, Dutch Leonard of the Senators and Orval Grove of the White Sox, and two National choppers, Jim Tobin and Al Javery of the Braves, were practically eliminated from consideration by working Sunday games.

Unless Southworth calls in the Phil's Ken Raffensberger the Americans will see all right-handed hurling. With that in mind, McCarthy's lineup may read like this: Lefty McQuinn, Browns, first base; Bobby Doerr, Red Sox, second base; Vern Stephens, Browns, shortstop; Ken Keltner, Indians, third base and Thurman Tucker, White Sox, Stan Spence, Senators, and Bob Johnson, Red outfield; with either Frankie Hayes, Athletics, or Rick Ferrell, Senators, catching.

National Lineup
Southworth can use Phil Cavaretta of the Cubs at first base when McCarthy is using a righthander of Frank McCormick of the Reds if a southpaw is on the bill. Connie Ryan of the Braves is the likely second baseman with Martin Marion of the Cards and Eddie Miller of the Reds sharing shortstop.

Bob Elliott's recent surge may get the Pirates the nod for catcher but Whitey Kurowski of the Cards is a better bet for the hot corner. Walker Cooper of the Cards and Mickey Owen of the Dodgers are due for catching duty while the outfield probably will include Stan Musial of the Cards, Mel Ott of the Giants and either Dixie Walker of the Dodgers or Bill Nicholson of the Cubs.

BY HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
NEW YORK, July 10.—By a roundabout route comes this report from G. B. Sander, Hardin-Simmons U. athletic manager who now is a Red Cross field director with General "Vinegar Joe" Stilwell's forces in Burma. G. B. claims to have the largest hat in India (it would make all the ten-gallon toppers in Texas turn green with envy) and the longest short snorter in the world (1000 feet). "Told 'Uncle Joe' he could pick 25 of his good Chinese boys and we would bring them back to the campus," Sander wrote. "Have 10 British boys coming for Merle Evans' cowboy band, three French girls from North Africa who play native instruments, and plenty of good GI's that will be ready for our Sammy Baugh-Bulldog Turner, our Frank Kimbrough-Clark Jarnagin or our Warren Woodson-Jewell Wallace coaching combinations after the war. We will make it an Allied university after this is over, and all get to understand each other better, or we will have another in 25 years."

Chances are Sander will have a private war on his hands in Texas if he goes through with such long-range recruiting, and maybe another if he tries to realize his dream of getting those two Sweetwater, Tex., ranchers, Baugh and Turner, to coach at Abilene while the pro grid customers still want to see them.

RED HOT UMP
Since that Baltimore ball park fire last week, they're calling Umpire Ray Van Graft "fireman." It was the second time a ball park had burned down after Roy had officiated a game and each time he lost his blue uniform, which is a hard thing to replace these days. Van Graft also was umpire at Newark, Aug. 15, 1923, just before Harrison field was destroyed.

Servicemen Eager To Resume College Study, Survey Shows

(By United Press)
BLOOMINGTON, Ind.—Indiana university officials predict that men in military service whose college educations were interrupted by the war will return to the campus when the war ends more seriously intent on fitting themselves for jobs in the shortest possible time.

The officials based their prediction upon the results of a survey taken in a poll of the discharged veterans now on the campus. Dean Wendell W. Wright, poll conductor said the men also believed that the government should help them.

According to the results, 80 per cent declared they were interested in vocational courses such as business, education, medicine, law and dentistry. Of the 80 per cent, 62 per cent were taking such courses when called into military service.

38 P. C. Change Courses
Thirty-eight per cent of the men said they had changed from their originally contemplated course of study.

Few of the discharged servicemen said they were experiencing any great difficulty in readjusting themselves to the change from military to civilian student life. They said the main problems they found were changing from the discipline of military service to civilian freedom, getting back into study routine and getting used to being out of uniform.

Without exception, the men said they were returning to the university with more serious intentions than before they went into the Army or Navy.

Two-thirds of them favored continuation of the accelerated war program because it would enable them "to get to work sooner, to catch up on time lost and because of age."

Some of the men felt that the government should help them finance their interrupted college studies as compensation for time lost while in military service. A few objected to receiving government assistance "as a gift."

DODGER'S LOSING STREAK NOW UP TO 13 — STILL GOING

Just Missed Losing 14th In Row at Pittsburgh Yesterday

B. JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer
Manager Leo Durocher of the Brooklyn Dodgers seems to be on the spot again. His position, shaky the past few years, has been made more precarious than ever by the current losing streak of the Dodgers, which has reached 13 officially yesterday.

Brooklyn's 13th successive loss, which matched the season's low set by the Cubs, was handed to them by the Pittsburgh Pirates 10-1 in the opener of a double header yesterday. They almost tied the longest losing streak in the history of the club when they trailed 9-7 in the nightcap, called at the end of eight innings by Pennsylvania's 6:50 curfew law. The game will be completed later.

After losing seven out of nine to Detroit, the New York Yankees made an about face and swept a war relief double header from the Tigers, 4-3 and 8-2 before 33,482, and the Philadelphia Athletics moved the Yankees to within a game of the second place Boston Red Sox.

The league leading St. Louis Browns and the Washington Senators exchanged shutouts. The Browns, behind Newman Shirely's two-hit pitching, won the first, 10-0, and the Senators, with Dutch Leonard pitching five-hit ball took the second, 5-0.

The Red Sox and Cleveland split their double header, the Indians winning the opener 8-2 and the Red Sox the second 4-2. Bobby Doerr of the Red Sox became the first American league batter to make 100 hits.

Frank Hayes banged his 10th homer as the Chicago White Sox divided their twin-bill, the White Sox taking the opener 4-3 for Bill Dietrich's 10th victory, and the A's annexing the finale 6-2.

The St. Louis Cardinals handed the Boston Braves a double blanking, with Mort Cooper winning his 10th game in the opener 1-0 as Stan Musial and Brother Walker Cooper combined to score the lone run off Jim Tobin. Harry Brecheen gained his seventh win in the nightcap 9-0.

The Chicago Cubs climbed out of the cellar as they defeated the New York Giants twice, 6-2 and 1-0. Claude Passeau shaded Bill Vukole in the second game as Andy Pafo singled with the bases loaded in the sixth inning.

The Cincinnati Reds moved to within five percentage points of second place with a double victory over Philadelphia 9-5 and 7-5.

KLIEMAN NOW IN TRIBE DOGHOUSE
(By Associated Press)
SAMPSON, N. Y., July 10.—Another Cleveland Indian pitcher became a tenant in the managerial doghouse today.

The latest moundman to move into quarters previously occupied by Jim Bagby and Vernon Kennedy is Ed (Spec) Klieman, 25-year-old right hander serving his first full season with the club.

Klieman was fined $100 after he clashed verbally with Manager Lou Boudreau at Boston yesterday when the Indian pilot removed him from the box in the ninth inning of the opener of a twin bill.

The Indians held a six-run lead with two out and a runner on first when Boudreau waved Joe Heving in from the bullpen to replace Klieman.

Klieman received credit for the 8 to 2 victory in the opener, his fifth triumph against four defeats. The Red Sox won the afterpiece 4 to 2 after securing all their runs off Ray Poat in the first two innings.

Cuts 'Knees' for Ships
SANDY, Ore.—Ralph DeShazer, Sandy expert who makes ship knees here, says "knees" are now being used in building P-T boats, corvettes and land barges, in both the United States and England. He says the hipknee is the strongest wood joint made. The weights run from 150 to 2,000 pounds. DeShazer says the trick in knowing how to cut the knees is to pick the right tree and get the right angle on the foot. He's been cutting them for 15 years.

Plastic Toothpaste Tubes
WILMINGTON, Del.—Collapsible tubes for certain types of toothpaste containers, waterproof coatings, piping, adhesives and insulation for electric wiring and cables can all be made from polythene, a new plastic, claims the Du Pont company. It is produced from the ethylene derived from coal gas or petroleum.

A Danish postmaster, Einar Holboll, conceived the idea of the Christmas tuberculosis seal.

NELSON-MCSPADEN WIN GOLF HONORS

Team Finishes With Plus Count of 13; Hamilton-Kaiser Second

MINNEAPOLIS, July 10.—Being something of a putting sensation is fairly new for Jug McSpaden, who dropped from the winter golf tour three years ago because he couldn't putt.

At that time, the Philadelphia pro became affectionately known among his colleagues as "Jerks" McSpaden. He got the shakes when he got a putter in his hand.

"Hours of practice finally snapped me out of it," said Jug. "And then, too, I patched up a putter with an extra heavy club head—and the added weight seemed to help my touch."

Mostly because of his magic putter, McSpaden has cornered the title-winning market this season—taking five tournaments outright and teaming with Byron Nelson, his rival for the 1944 champion of champions honors, to win the Golden Valley four-ball invitational championships yesterday.

The Nelson-McSpaden combine finished the 126-hole, match play marathon with a plus of 13 count in the scoring system—three point edge over the second place team of Bill Kaiser-Hamilton.

Nelson-McSpaden had a best ball aggregate for the seven rounds of 447 strokes—64 under par—for an average of 63.8 on each 18-hole trip. Kaiser-Hamilton averaged 65.7.

The winners split a prize of $1,600 War bonds. McSpaden running his leading bond-tagging total to $18,900 for the season and Nelson increasing his earnings to $16,891.

Next stop for the bond shooters will be the revived national P. G. A. at Spokane, Wash., Aug. 14-20.

"LIFEBOATS MUST REACH THE VICTORY SHIPS ON TIME ..."

"Sure glad we've got FORDS!"

says M. JAREMA, Works Manager, Lane Lifeboat & Davit Corporation, Flushing, New York

Letters from Ford Truck owners tell how reliable their trucks are on all kinds of jobs—how seldom they need repairs—how little they cost to run and keep up. Limited production of new Ford Trucks has recently been authorized. If your needs are urgent and you can qualify, see your Ford dealer. It will be necessary, of course, to provide ODT certification.

"DELIVERING COMPLETE SETS of lifeboats saves unloading and handling costs. Our Fords truck them into the yards on time, ready to be swung aboard the Victory and Liberty ships."

"A FORD RECONDITIONED ENGINE was installed in one truck in emergency, enabling us to hold to schedules. Such service is a great help. We wouldn't trade our Fords for any other make."

Athletics Collect 22 Hits Including Four By Allison, On Mound; Kenst Hits Homer

In a free-hitting game at Firestone park yesterday, the Salem Athletics defeated Columbiana, 13 to 9, to even their season's record at five-all.

Columbiana led the way with three runs in the first inning, but Salem came back to score two in the second, two in the third and four in the fourth. That seemed to put the Athletics on safe ground, but Columbiana made it a ball game by shoving two runs across in each of the fifth and sixth.

With another four-run spree in the seventh, Salem was far enough in the lead to claim the victory, although Columbiana tallied one in the eighth and one in the final stanza.

Allison, on the mound for Salem, allowed 10 hits but contributed

SAIPAN CONQUEST

Noemf's three airfields, 800 miles southeast of Mindanao, were captured within five days' last week. Noemf and the nearby Schouten islands, where the Americans held four airdromes on Biak and Owi, surround New Guinea's huge Geelvink bay, with its possibilities for elaborate naval development.

Organized resistance of Saipan collapsed rather suddenly. Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced, following a day of suicidal counterattacks that penetrated the American lines in some places as much as 2,000 yards but lost the enemy 1,500 dead.

Japs Lose 58 Ships, 900 Planes

At least 11,500 Japanese—probably thousands more—were killed, and more than 7,000 enemy civilians were imprisoned. American casualties to June 28 were 1,474 dead and 8,278 wounded.

Japan's frantic defense of Saipan cost her at least 58 ships and more than 900 airplanes. The Americans lost 172 planes, and had four ships damaged.

Hundreds, perhaps thousands of snipers still infested Saipan's caves and thickets—a ticklish situation which Marines of the Second and Fourth divisions and soldiers of the 27th division agreed was well in hand.

Continue Evacuations To Escape Buzz Bomb Death

LONDON, July 10.—Evacuation of women and children from London and various cities in southern England continued in orderly fashion today as the German flying bomb offensive went into its 26th day.

More than 50,000 children alone already have been moved out of the immediate danger zone. It was a noisy night as the Germans took advantage of overcast skies over Dover strait to sneak their robot planes through the defense wall. An official announcement acknowledged damage and casualties in both London and the southern counties.

Before darkness set in, however, fighter pilots were credited with shooting down a considerable number of the buzz bombs into the sea.

Sink Second Shaft To Entombed Miners

BELLAIRE, July 10.—A deathly echo answered calls down a vent to the tunnel where 66 coal miners are entombed at nearby Powhatan mine, but drillers, clinging doggedly to the slim hope that the men might be alive, were sinking a second shaft today.

Crews using a drill nine inches in diameter broke through yesterday to the tunnel where the men were imprisoned 400 feet underground. They then lowered into the mine a telephone connected to an amplifier on the surface. But only the echo of their own voices and the dripping of an underground spring answered them as they tried to contact the men.

The men were imprisoned by a fire Wednesday. Almost all hope for their safety was abandoned the following day and all external mine entrances were sealed as the only means of extinguishing the flames.

Find Boy, 13, Unconscious With Face, Body Slashed

CLEVELAND, July 10.—His face and body slashed almost beyond recognition, a 13-year-old boy remained unconscious in Huron Road hospital today while police studied the puzzle of an apparent attempt on his life and the mysterious death of his mother.

Coroner Samuel R. Gerber identified the boy as Richard Troutman, who was found unconscious in his home yesterday by his foster-father, Boyd Davis. The body of the youth's mother, Mrs. Mildred Davis, was found a short time later, hanging from a basement rafter.

William Thomas Hanna, USMC, sadly kisses the bow of the destroyer escort Hanna a few moments before the craft was launched at Port Newark, N. J. The sponsor of the launching was Mrs. Wm. F. ## NAZI DIVISIONS

The Germans' whole Normandy front was described as in "a state of strain" today.

Gen. Omar N. Bradley's American First Army advanced an average of a mile along many parts of the Cherbourg peninsula front. In the St. Jean De Daye sector it captured Cavigny, three miles southwest of St. Jean, and also Le Desert, two miles southwest.

Today Allied troops were on the move everywhere along the Normandy front except in the sector from St. Lo to Caumont. German lines were being bulged to the bursting point.

Position Precarious

The German position was precarious on two counts:

1. It was believed the Germans had not been able to destroy all the bridges across the Orne in their rapid retreat.

2. The British long have held desperately to the bridgehead across the Orne from a mile north of the suburb to the sea and this now is paying big dividends. This bridgehead threatens the German flank, for an attack south from the bridgehead would cut off all the Germans in the suburb.

The use of Caen as a port will be impossible for the allies until German lines are cleared well south of the Orne. A naval officer said Caen could take ships up to 6,000 tons under the best tidal conditions, but for the most part it could be used only by 3,000-ton coastal ships. Although the town's docks were destroyed, the canal leading from the sea has been in Allied hands since D-day.

BOMB BRIDGE

from Italy hit the Romanian oil center of Ploesti. Britain-based U. S. Flying Fortresses and Liberators on three major missions pounded bridges in the Tours area in France, hitting bomb launching sites in the Pas-De-Calais zone and a German airdrome at Chateaudun, 75 miles southwest of Paris. Four heavy bombers and three fighters were lost in the attack on French targets.

Hit Buzz-Bomb Sites

The RAF also sent fighter-escorted Lancasters and Halifaxes against the buzz-bomb sites as these terror missiles continued to fall in Southern England and the London area. Bad weather hindered the Allied bombing.

That the Germans are becoming hard-pressed for motor fuel was shown by the capture in Normandy of an increasing number of tanks and trucks which had run out of fuel. This was attributed both to Allied air attacks on production centers, supplying dumps and roads—and to the French underground activities cutting rail lines, thus forcing the Germans to move tanks to the front under their own power.

LITHUANIAN CITY APPEARS DOOMED

Red Army Fighting Second Day In the Streets of Wilno, Capital

MOSCOW, July 10.—The Red army fought for the second day in the streets of the Lithuanian capital of Wilno today, but the city appeared doomed to early capitulation.

(London dispatches said the Russian army, leaving large forces of tanks and infantry to battle the Germans in Wilno, was dashing westward toward Kaunas (Kovno), 50 miles beyond Wilno, as the disorganized Germans fell back across Lithuania and Poland in a military collapse that grew more disastrous by the hour.)

Northwest of Wilno the Russians had reached within 80 to 85 miles of East Prussia at unspecified points, these reports said.

The Germans declared East Prussia a "rear area of operations" and are planning a swift withdrawal from the Pskov-Narva sector of Estonia, information reaching a person in London with close connections with the German underground said today.

Calls For Evacuation

This informant asserted the Nazi plan called for the evacuation of all of Estonia and most of Latvia to strengthen the defenses of East Prussia, cradle of junkers military leadership.)

While some troops of Gen. Ivan Cherniakhovsky's Third White Russian army battered down resistance inside Wilno, others were deployed on the left flank and captured the railway junction of Lida, 50 miles to the south.

Cherniakhovsky's men captured more than 300 other points, it was announced.

Gen. Ivan Bagramian's First Baltic army struck northeast of Wilno and seized Sventyanyi, 48 miles from the capital, and just inside the Lithuanian border, bringing the Wilno-Daguavpils (Dvinsk) railroad under fire.

Gen. George Zhukharov's Second White Russian army, which has been lagging behind the others in the offensive, crossed the Lida-Barniweze railroad, taking 150 towns, including Dyarltovo, 30 miles south of Lida, and Novogrudok, the same distance to the southeast.

White House Talks Impress De Gaulle

WASHINGTON, July 10.—Gen. Charles De Gaulle, reporting his conversations with President Roosevelt had attained the "principal object" of creating a better understanding, announced today he would move his capital from Algiers to liberated French territory as soon as possible.

"I had very broad and frank conversations with President Roosevelt," De Gaulle told a press conference, adding that he was taking away with him "the best possible impression from my stay in the capital of the United States."

The French leader said he explained to the President "as well as I could, how France, gradually emerging from her temporary misfortune, intends to participate with her Allies, at her rightful place, first in the war and then in the life of the world at peace."

De Gaulle said President Roosevelt spoke to him of American responsibilities for the war and for the peace "with a breadth of view, a knowledge of the problems, and an idealism which particularly impressed me."

The general discussed his meeting with Mr. Roosevelt and other American officials just before taking a plane for New York.

The War Today

By DeWitt MacKenzie

into the peninsula a flood of men in forward with speed and force which threatened to produce a collapse of the German defense of the Baltic states and east Prussia. The Red forces were fighting inside Lithuania and were reported to be only about 80 miles from East Prussia.

The American conquest of Saipan is a major victory. This island is the best airbase we have in the Central Pacific and its possession opens up great possibilities. From Saipan our super-bombers can reach both Tokyo and the Philippines, which lie approximately 1,500 miles away, and we can comb important Japanese sea communications. This island also affords great possibilities as a naval supply base.

The 25 day battle of Saipan was a sanguinary affair. Associated Press War Correspondent Rembert James says that probably 95 percent of the Japanese force, estimated at more than 20,000, was destroyed. The little men of Nippon made a suicidal defense.

The first zoological garden was established in China about 1100 B. C.
